

ABSTRACT

A multilayer semiconductor laser includes a substrate on which is formed a semiconductor multilayer heterostructure divided into a plurality of electrically pumped regions and an elongated optically pumped region. The electrically pumped regions generate and delivering optical pump radiation laterally into the elongated optically pumped region.
5 Output radiation is generated and delivered by the optically pumped region.